Foreword

Another Iris season has come and gone again. Each year we look forward to the month of May, when Iris unfurl their silken banners and we worship anew at their shrine. The newer Iris are very lovely and so superior in every respect, that they are rapidly supplanting the older varieties. The month of June ushers in the Japanese Iris. They have an undefinable quality that gives them distinction, and look like colorful butterflies swaying on a stem.

The best way to select Iris is to see them in bloom. Pictures, (whether in color, or black or white) and descriptions, no matter how accurate, are only a substitute for the real thing. So arrange to make a trip to your nearest Iris garden during blooming time, and you will be better satisfied with the Iris you select.

An exhibition garden of over 200 varieties of peonies, including species, is planted along the highway. We also grow many new varieties of Oriental poppies and hemerocallis. The latter bloom from May to early August, and are rapidly becoming the most satisfactory summer blooming perennial. Lists of any of these may be had on request.

Introductions for 1937 - 8

The two Ayres seedlings introduced last year bloomed for the first time in our gardens, and received favorable comment by the members of A. I. S. who attended the convention held in this city. ETHEREAL did not bloom until later. But we are sure it will be welcomed by all who like soft blends.

ETHEREAL (1938) (LM 40) - Flower measures 6" from tip to tip, and the petals are 2 inches wide. S. arching, cupped, bronzy tan with a faint violet shading, deepening to old gold at the claw; F. broad, straight hanging, with a heavy flushing of light aniline blue throughout the center, palest near the beard. The edge is a pale, dull shining copper. Beard dull gold. Haft cream with reticulations of deep canary yellow changing to fawn. A blend difficult to describe, as there is an iridescence in the standards and edge of falls, that light up the flower. It has a carrying color in the garden. Well branched. $ 7.50

MARGARET ROWE (M 30") - Flower  $5\frac{1}{2}$  inches from tip to tip, and two inches across. S. arching, light purplish mauve, faintly under-laid bronzy yellow; F. drooping a tone deeper with a deep gold beard. Haft has a faint buff reticulation on a pale lemon yellow ground. General color, a deep old rose self, set off by the brilliant gold beard and haft. A sister seedling of La Lorraine. \$5.00

MRS. SILAS WATERS (M 36") - Flower measures  $6\frac{1}{2}$  inches from tip to tip, and the broad petals are  $2\frac{1}{2}$  inches wide. S. slightly crepy arched, pale primrose yellow; F. flaring,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  inches long, same shade with deepening coloring in the center. Beard dull gold. Haft cream, with deep canary marking, fading to greenish yellow. A large and lovely pale yellow self, with yellow haft markings. Stems branch widely and the flowers are freely produced. Truly a prize winner. \$ 7.50

One each of 1937 introductions for $10.00
All three for $16.50.
